The holiday season is officially upon us. Let's continue to steer towards a safe, happy holiday season together.

As we transition into Thanksgiving and the busy December holidays, roadway safety becomes more important than ever. With more celebrations, more travel, and more distractions, this season is a critical time to stay focused behind the wheel.

Safety Tips for the Season

- Plan Ahead: Designate a sober driver or schedule a taxi/rideshare service before consuming alcohol.

- Stay Alert: Keep your eyes on the road at all times. If you encounter an impaired driver, contact local law enforcement, and leave space between your vehicle and theirs.
- Be a Good Friend: Take the keys away from anyone who attempts to drive impaired and help them get home safely.

By making responsible choices, we can help make the holiday season safer for everyone.

The first week of December marks Older Driver Safety Awareness Week, a time dedicated to promoting safe driving practices and considerations for older adults. Even if you are not an older driver yourself, chances are you have a loved one who is. Age-related changes, such as impaired vision, reduced sleep quality, tremors, or memory challenges may increase risk on the road.
